AND HENRY COUNTY NEWS.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF CITY AND CO.

NAPOLEON, OH O, APRIL 19, 1894.

THE Breckinridge-Pollard case has come to an end by the jury giving the plaintiff a verdict of $15,000 which is absolutely worth nothing, as Breckinridge is possessed of no property. Now that the disgusting and demorhoped the country will not be afflictevening, of apoplexy. He had been suffering from paralysis and a complication of diseases for some time, but the end was sudden and unexpected, as he was regaining his health, and it was thought was on the road gle over the tariff he returned to Washington.

THE Democratic congressional convention, at which Mr. Sorg was nominated to succeed the late Geo. W. Houk, in the Dayton district, after declaring an abiding confidence in the honesty, integrity and capacity of the president of the United States, and commending his courageous administration, made the following significant declaration on the pending tariff

We commend the action of the House of Representatives in the pas-sage of the Wilson bill, repealing the McKinley law; we deprecate the efforts of the Senate to change it in any essential particular; we hope the senate will take speedy action in the premis-es, and give the country the oppor-tunity to recover from the results of Republican misrule.

AGAIN it was not a negro wretch lynched in the south, but right here in Ohio, and that, too, in benighted Logan county. On the night of the 15th, at Rushsylvania, Logan county, an excited and determined mob took Seymour Newlin, a negro, who had committed a criminal assault upon Mrs. Knowles, an aged woman and a resident of Rushsylvania, from the calaboose and lynched him, hanging the wretch to a cotton wood tree near by. The mob would not give the negro ravisher up to the Sheriff, who demanded the prisoner, and the officer was powerless to save Newlin's life. When the mob completed their work it dispersed quietly. It was made up both of men and woman. Newlin bore a bad character and had served two or three terms in the penitentiary.

THE Cincinnati Tribune is one Republican journal that doesn't charge the Democratic administration with bringing about the low price of wheat.

It says: The real trouble is that the world is producing too much wheat; crops have been so enormous in many parts of the globe, that the people have not been able to consume the output.

Notwithstanding the magnitude of our wheat crop the United States is not in a position to control the markets of the world. It is now one of many wheat growing countries, and in the absence of uncommon con-er countries and we could not com-pete with them at all if it were not for our labor saving appliance.

A Bit of Ohlo's Political History Since the War.

The Democratic party is not killed it is only sleeping and resting for future triumphs. In 1868 John Brough defeated Clement L. Vallandingham by 100,882 majority and the Republi not only dead but putrified. Four years later the Democrats elected a Legislature and sent Allen G. Thurman to the United States Senate. Six years later (1873) they elected William Allen governor and re-elected Senator Thurman for another six years. In 1877 the Democrats swept the whole state ticket with Gov. Bishop, got the Legislature and sent George H. Pendelton to the United States Senate. In 1882 they again carried the state, electing James W. Newman as secretary of state. In 1883 they elected George Hoadly as governor for governor with all the state ticket tures, four Governors and five times elected United States Senators. It is a remarkable coincidence that every time the Democrats get the Legislature there is a United States Senator that time great changes and political revolutions can occur. Any changes from now on are bound to be in the Democracy's favor as our party is at a very low ebb. When Harrison was beaten for president in 1892 the pop-ular clamor said the Republican party was dead and ready for burial. But in one year it recuperated and played havoc last November and again this April at the elections. "Times ain't now as they used to be," is an old adage, and a month now in politics is equal to several years in the long ago. A party one year may be up and the next down, and vice versa.

With the Wilson bill promptly passed in some form by the Democratic Congress, the Democrats can do well next fall and secure the Fifty-fourth Congress, and carry Ohio in 1895, getting the Governor, Legislature and a United States Senator. No Democrat actuated by principle and remember-ing the sacred traditions of our party favored by Jefferson, and upheld by Jackson, will for a moment lose faith. Have courage. The hour of re-demption and regeneration is not afar off.—Columbus Press.

County Auditor Resh answers to a nicety the distorted manner in which the Signal has been giving its readers alizing case is at an end, it is to be the financial condition of Henry counten years if it is kept up.

egislature to tax mortgages held by

This is a shallow pretense, as every-body knows that foreign mortgages will stand no such discrimination. If this bill becomes a law the foreclosure of every mortgage as it becomes due and is not paid will be only a matter of a very short time, and those whom t is the adlaged intention to benefit will be the worst sufferers. The fore-closure of the mortgages held by foreign investors in almost every county in Ohio would mean the bankruptcy of people, besides an ad-yance in interest rates that would in turn bankrupt all the business men and manufacturers doing business on borrowed capital, or at least force them to quit, as no borrower can afford to pay any advance in interest rates on the present basis and the very narrow margins that business is now done on. The enactment of this law would be a calamity equal to a year famine in Ohio.

EDITOR NORTHWEST:—Mr. Russell in his review of the auditor's statement published in the Signal, March 28th, 1894, seems to be very much inclined to misconstrue the language employed in said statement to suit his purpose to gain a partisan advantage. The auditor is willing to submit to Webster for the unbiased meaning of words as employed in meaning of words as employed in language, but not to Mr. Russell unelected George Hoadly as governor with entire state ticket and secured a General Assembly that chose Henry B. Payne to the Senate. In 1889 they carried Ohio for James E. Campbell for governor with all the state ticket in order to create the impression that in order to create the impression that and a Legislature that elected Calvin
S. Brice to the Senate.
Since the war, therefore, the Ohio
Democracy have had five Legislafund as was ever made in any previous year, including every record of levies made by himself when auditor. The word estimate, in the connection in which it was employed in the aud-itor's former statement, fails to come up to his standard of meaning. It ture there is a United States Senator to be chosen. Six months are a long time now in American politics. In an opinion of the value without measurements of the state of the s uring or weighing an approximate judgment or opinion as to cost," and this is precisely what the commissioners had intended when the levies were made for each fund. Mr. Russell also intimates that the auditor's lan-guage casts reflections on the commissioners and places them in an un-enviable position before the people. He also indirectly charges the auditor with underestimating the intelli-gence of the citizens of Henry county, because, forsooth, in a former article he asserted that the finances and condition of the various funds in Henry county were imperfectly understood by the majority of the taxpayers. This misapprehension of the auditor's meaning arises from the fact that he ignores Webster and has set up his own standard by which to judge the meaning of words. The auditor is still firm in the belief that it is not possible to the tensor of the control of th sible for the masses of the people to comprehend the true condition of the finances of Henry county from the published statement of funds each year, however intelligent they may be, without a comparison of the receipts and expenditures of several years with each other, and a fair con-ception of much else to be gained only by a special study of the situa-tion, or by coming in direct line with the management of the county finan-ces; and Fulton county with far less fi-nancial complication and no bonded the financial condition of Henry coun-indebtedness, but on account of un-ty. Had Mr. Russell during his term bonded indebtedness alone, held a ed with another of like nature.

ANOTHER U. S. Senator dies suddenly. This time it is Senator Vance, of North Caroline, who died at his of North Carolina, who died at his be in when Mr. Resh took hold of the ligent understanding of the proper home in Washington on Saturday Auditor's office. Henry county is all payers of anoplexy. He had been wight under the present management. right under the present management, auditor, in his former statement and will be out of debt in less than in speaking of unusual expenses, limited the statement to the county fund alone, and for work actually perform-In speaking of the bill in the Ohio ed by the treasurer under the Garber law, and the recorder under the contract of the commissioners for into recovery. He was compelled during the winter to leave the senate and go to Florida. Here he grew somewhat better, and in view of the strugwhich is a new expense since the advent of the Australian ballot, and to offset this statement of the auditor which applies only to the county fund, Mr. Russell includes in his statement the building fund, sinking fund, road improvement, the management of refunding the bonded debt, and various irrevelant things making a total unusual expense for 1890 of $25,-380.50. The extra expense of the bond issue was only a matter of manage-ment, and means that Henry county was bonded in July, 1890, for $100,000 and only realized in return $96,875. The heating apparatus was paid for by invading local funds to the extent of $4,560.88, as the building fund was overdrawn Sept. 1st, 1891, in the sum of $4,560.88. The road improvement was paid from other funds. The commissioners' time would have been emploped in other work for these 45 days if there had been no decennial appraisement, as was the case in the previous and the succeeding years. This work only added to the other work that was done during this time, but the increase of 25 per cent. or $400 in the monthly salary of the auditor for all work that was increased on account of the decennial appraisement, and the cost of books for indexing of $487.50, and books for real estate appraisement, and compensation for appraisers of $1,579.50, is all properly unusual expense and for which the county fund was responsible, amounting to $2,466.50, which is all the unusual expense necessarily incurred during the time to which Mr. Russell refers. The difference between paying expenses from taxes collected and in the treasury, and taxes to be levied and collected in the future, as was the case at the close of business Sept., 1st, 1891, is immense, and is surely in favor of the auditor's former statement that an increase in the levy has proven to be vastly in the interest of the taxpayers. It is fortunate that the building fund has a surplus on hand that car be used to relieve the county fund of its floating indebtedness by transfer, and the general ditch fund a surplus to retire the overdrawn road improvement funds. If this transfer had been made just before the last published statement, this statement would have been as follows, to-wit: County fund, on hand........ $3,419 68

Bridge " " 9,091 91 Building " 1,410 87 Sinking " " 16,887 89 Plection fund, on hand...... 1,189 42

Every fund declaring an amount on hand sufficient to meet present de-mands and not a penny of unnecessmands and not a penny of unnecess-ary money in the treasury. Instead of the above being the statement published, there were fifteen road improvement funds and one road fund and the county fund published singly, with an aggregate indebted-ness of $25,008.38.

The proposed transfer would wipe FROM the Auditor of State's report matters, out this indebtedness and retire all of for 1893 we find that the total amounts Willia the burden, and because of the failure to levy a tax sufficient to meet the COUNTY FINANCES. indebtedness of $8,625.77 unprovided for. If this practice of former years is to be continued, and no means pro-

The only advantage gained when the county fund was bonded, was in the management for its payment in the management for its payment in seven years by installments. During seven years by installments. During the last seven years that the sinking fund carried this debt, it cost the taxpayers of Henry county in interest and brokerage $12,372.50. This debt will now cost the county when paid in interest only $7,000, a difference in favor of paying this debt by installments of $5,352.50. The first year's principal and interest has been paid. This management also relieves the This management also relieves the sinking fund of $35,000 indebtedness sinking fund of $35,000 indebtedness and saves it each year from the payment of $1,767.50 interest and brokerage and ussures the taxpayers that the bonded debt of $130,000 will be paid at maturity, and before maturity if the commissioners can call in the bonds. They are now ready to pay fifteen bonds of $1,000 each, if they can be procured, and each year in the future an average of fifteen bonds of $1,000 each will be paid, and while this is being done the county fund must be assisted to bear its burden of debt and meet current expenses. This can be done with but a trifling added expense to the taxpayers if a proper and wise disposal be made of what we now have and can lawfully apply to relieve this fund of its un-bonded indebtedness, and as the average yearly payment of its bonded indebtedness is but $6,000, now is the time the fund should be assisted, as the payment, including interest for the first and second years, exceeds the average payment in the sum of $1,250, with the additional expense Williams imposed by the Garber law and in-

A careful inspection of the receipts and expenditures of the county fund for the five years, from Sept. 1st, 1888, to Sept. 1st, 1892, during all of which time the levy for the county fund was three and one-tenth mills, discloses the fact that the average collection for each year was $20,193.52, and that the average expenditure for each year was $25,690.50, also that the average was $50,690,000, also that the average expenditure above receipts each year was $5,496.93, or a total expenditure in five years above receipts of $27,-484.65, which being added to the indebtedness of Sept. 1st, 1887, equaled a total indebtedness of the county fund on the 1st day of Sept., 1892, of $40,477.16, which proves beyond question that the levy of three and onetenth mills was entirely insufficient to meet the current expenses of the county fund with an average duplicate valuation each of these years of $6,415,031. This constantly increasing indebtedness and relentless invasion of the rights of other funds to operate the county fund, should have been arrested by an increase in the levy or by transfer and strict adherence to economy in public expendi-ture. If the levy for these five years had been four and two-tenths mills instead of three and one-tenth mills, a difference of only one and one-tenth mills, the result would have been vastly different. The county fund on the 1st day of Sept., 1892, would have declared an amount on hand above all indebtedness and expenditure of $1,220.54 instead of a deficit of $40,-477.16. This additional levy of one and one-tenth mills would have proven itself to be immensely in the interest of the taxpayers of Henry county, and the additional levy scarcely felt, and the bonded debt for which the whole county is held and firmly bound, would have been on the 1st day of Jan., 1893, $130,000 instead of $165,000, and every other fund, both county and local, would have had every cent to which it was entitled at that time, but on account of the failure to place and maintain the county fund on a self-sustaining basis during all these years preceding Jan. 1st, 1892, this debt of former years must be paid in the future, and upon a duplicate valuation of but a few thousand dollars greater than while this debt was accumulating, which demonstrates beyond question the unwisdom of beyond question the unwisdom of making the future bear its own burdens, and also, the burdens of the past, as $35,000 of this indebtedness is bonded and bears interest and will cost the people $7,000 more money than if the levy in former years had been sufficient to meet current expenses. It will require the exercise of mature and skillful judgment to accomplish this result, on account of the duplicate valuation being very far below the average in the State, and current expenses corresponding-ly greater on account of special work being above the average. The dupli-cate valuation of seventy-one of the eighty-eight counties in Ohio isgreat-er than that of Henry county, and only eight of less valuation, and the only eight of less valuation, and the county fund in many of them is overdrawn, which is conclusive evidence that this fund above all others, requires the greatest skill in management to make and keep self-supporting, and the auditor believes that it is the highest aim and loftiest ambition of the commissioners of Henry county to accomplish this result with the least possible burden to the taxpayers, consistent with legitimate expayers, consistent with legitimate ex-penditure, and therefore they have his firm and unswerving support in every lawful and laudable attempt to accomplish this greatly to be desired and very essential result. Respectfully submitted. J. H. RESH.
